3. Assigning children
4. Limitations

Introduction

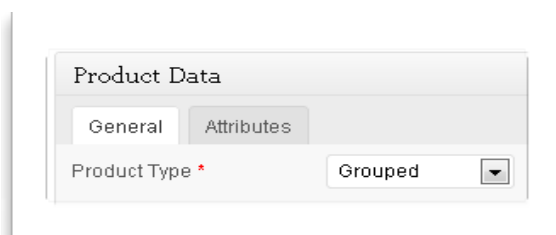

Grouped products display several products on one page. For example, if you are selling laptop accessories for one specific model - you can have a grouped product and sell a case, extra battery, external mouse or keyboard all from the same page. Grouped products have no prices; only their children products do.

Creating grouped products

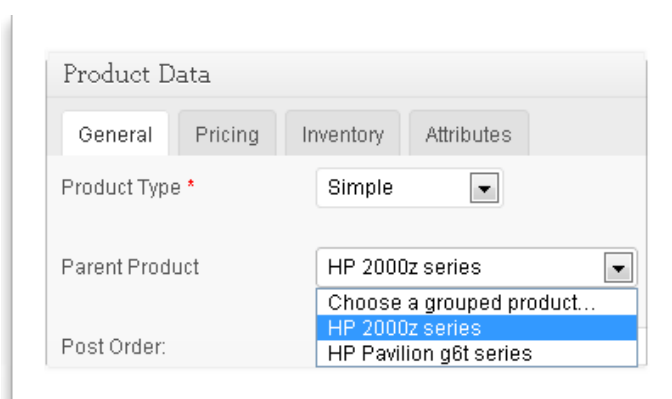

1. On your Add Product screen, simply choose the "Grouped" product type
2. You'll immediately notice a few options have disappeared from your view. This is because grouped products cannot have a price, only their children products can.
3. Fill out the Description and Summary fields, and add an Attribute if you'd like.

4. Now publish this product and go on to the next section to assign child products to it.

Assigning Children

1. While editing an existing product, choose your grouped product form the "Parent Product" selectbox.

2. Now when you visit your grouped product, you'll see this child product listed with it.

- Note that the child products will be listed in hierarchy to the parent product:
